COUNTY PRODUCTS.

William R. Jones, jr., was yester-day afternoon removed as superintendday afternoon removed as superintendent of the county infirmary by the board of county commissioners. B. M. Harman of Mill Creek was appointed to fill the vacancy. Anticipating the removal of Mr. Jones, and expecting to see Mrs. Sarah Jane Rich Miller appointed in his place, J. H. Hayford, the steward, tendered his resignation, but it was laid upon the table. Those who voted to remove Superintendent Jones and appoint Mr. Harman were Commissioners Horne and Harker. Chairman Anderson voted in the negative on both motions.

Commissioner Horne said yesterday that a quantity of groceries was sent to the home of Superintendent Jones which were charged up to the county, which were charged up to the county, and that the county paid the bills. He said the four tons of hay also went to the superintendent's home. It was also stated by Commissioner Horne that Superintendent Jones was in the habit of taking so much milk from the infirmary that it was found necessary to water that which was left for the inmates of the institution to make it go around. He further stated that the superintendent was feeding that the superintendent was feeding six head of cattle at the infirmary at the expense of the county.

Commissioners Harker and Horne:

Dear Sirs-Foreseeing that, in your desire for petty revenge, you would remove W. R. Jones from a position which he has filled with honor and ability and place in that position Mrs. Sarah Jane Rich Miller, I fiereby resign my place as steward, and insist that it be accepted at once. I am not ashamed of my record while serving in the capacity of steward, and do not care to mar that record by serving under a person who is, not only notoriously disagreeable, but entirely incompetent and untitted for any position of trust or responsibility. As about two thirds of the people depend on the steward for mellicine and would suffer greatly should they not receive it, I would suggest that the place be filled at once, It will probably, though, be as easy for you to get competent men on short notice as it is for you to discharge them without either reasen or warning. Yours respectfully, J. H. HAYFORD.

Two letters from Superintendent Jones to Commissioners Harker and Horne were read. One stated that he had intact the Si00 given him by the board from the county nauper fund. florne were read. One stated that he had intact the $190 given him by the board from the county pauper fund, although he had been compelled at times to use portions of it. The other was to the effect that he had filed with the county auditor each month a statement of the finances of the institution.

The controversy was renewed Friday night and a crowd of messenger boys, hack drivers and others who were compelled to listen, suggested that gloves be introduced and the fight finished.

Without more ado, the crowd went to Lawler's gymnasium, where entrance was secured by breaking through a door. The contestants were stripped and gloves produced. Referees and time keepers were appointed and six rounds were pulled off without interruption with hearty cheers and shouts from the spectators.

Demanded an Accounting.

After the meeting was over Commissioner Horne said that since Jones has been in office he has disposed of the following county property, and they had not seen a detailed account of the transactions: Four tons of hay, valued at $40; $250 worth of pigs; $100 received from the county paper fund; $130 for a cow, and a ton and more of carrois, beans and other produce. The commissioner says the account demanded of Jones would probably have shown a proper disposition of the money.

Early in the sixth round, when the presence of the officers was discovered, many of the audience attempted to make a "get-away." Conspicuous among the crowd of sports was a prominent gambler of ponderous paunch and hoary hair. Seeing the officers, he made a dash for the window. Simultaneously with his attempt to separate himself from the crowd, a small boy also decided on a similar feat. Both reached the window at the same time but stopped.

Demanded an Investigation.

Throughout the proceedings of the board, Chairman Anderson insisted on a demand being made for an official investigation, but no such action was taken. He characterizes the actions of his two fellow commissioners as fillegal and unfair to both himself and Superintendent Jones.

After the meeting was over Commissioner Horne said he did not know whether the new board would retain Mr. Harman, but he did not proposes to leave office with Superintendent Jones at the head of the institution after his refusal to comply with his
